Wire Will Carry Story of Nation's Decision
For President

The Daily today concluded the arrangements for its "election return party" on the night of November 4 and herewith extends a cordial invitation to the people of all North Alabama to attend.

Arrangements have been made with The Associated Press for a leased election news wire on next Tuesday evening. The wire will open about five o'clock Tuesday afternoon and continue open until midnight, or afterward, unless the result of the nation's balloting is shown conclusively before that hour.

The Associated Press has arranged for an unparalleled service on Tuesday evening. For many weeks the employees, the editors, the correspondents and the member papers have been working on their plans for gathering of the returns from all over the country. The Associated Press, having, as it does, member papers in every section of the nation, is in position to give the fastest and the most accurate returns possible. In other years the election return service of the "A. P." always has been a feature. This year unusual efforts have been exerted to make the election service break all former records.

The Daily plans to begin flashing returns about dusk on an immense screen on the front of the Schimmel and Hunter furniture company's building just across the street from The Daily office. Expert operators will be used to give the best possible projection.

The screen will be large enough to permit thousands in the streets to view the bulletins as they are flashed. Second avenue is sufficiently wide to accommodate a great crowd and The Daily hopes that people of Morgan, Lawrence, Limestone and Cullman will take full advantage of the newspaper's invitation to attend.

The service is absolutely free. The Daily paying the rather heavy cost of the evening's entertainment as a mark of appreciation to its readers over the Valley.

HOSIERY MILL HERE

Production Chief Looks
Over Plant; Says
Business Good

Superintendent Dohn, chief of the production division of the Cooper-Wells Hosiery company, operators of the Albany Hosiery mill, has returned to his home after having inspected the local plant.

Superintendent Dohn was quoted over the showing made at the plant here, under the direction of Superintendent V. L. King. Records in production have been established here several times, only to fall when a higher figure is obtained.

Business of the Cooper-Wells company is growing rapidly, the official asserted, and a bright future for the local mill was predicted.

J. Ogden Wells, head of the company, is expected to arrive here early next month and local business men are planning another "Iron Clad" day soon.

PLAN AUCTION SALE FOR HOSPITAL FUND

Bids Will Be Asked On Merchandise Given
By W. W. Rahm

Impetus has been given the movement of helping the Benevolent Hospital Association as a result of the action of the Shrine Club at their banquet on Tuesday evening when it was unanimously decided to consider definite plans for raising funds for the local infirmary.

In this instance, apart from the ideas of the Shrine Club, a local member of the fraternity has decided to help the cause and merely as a starter is offering merchandise to the value of $50, which is to be sold at auction on Saturday night and the entire proceeds of the sale to be given to the Benevolent Hospital.

The donor is W. W. Rahm. An arrangement has been made for an auctioneer to handle the sale in a rather unique fashion so that every one can "bid" on the article.

The sale is to take place at Rahm's store on Saturday afternoon, beginning at 5 o'clock and will last until about 7.

The benefit is commendable and the cause a most worthy one.

Mrs. Elizabeth Guyton, the superintendent of the Benevolent Hospital will act as chairman in charge of a number of ladies who will collect all the moneys taken in as a result of the auction the names of the ladies who will serve on the committee to be announced in tomorrow's issue of The Daily.

Southern Writer Is Visiting Locally

Mrs. George David Webb of Memphis, Tenn., whose thoughts are rapidly gaining recognition throughout the several southern states through her latest poems "Day Dreams in Dixie" is visiting her sister, Mrs. T. A. Caddell. Mrs. Webb is remembered locally by a number of friends that she has made during other visits to Albany-Decatur.

In her work, "Day Dreams in Dixie" Mrs. Webb accomplishes what a great many other writers have failed to do, she has reproduced the negro dialect that has always stood as a stumbling block to writers who have attempted a reproduction of the black race with the characteristic expressions and sayings.

Not all of the poems reproduced in Day Dreams deal with the characteristics of the negro of the old south, but as the author says in a small foreword in the beginning the whole work of the book is intended to create a "greater tolerance for the comprehension of this simple kindly but much misunderstood Black Folk."

TRAVELLING MEN'S ORGAN HAS BOOST
FOR A BRIDGE HERE

Says Tennessee Should Be Bridge at Two Points in State

FERRY TRAFFIC
HERE IS HEAVY

Periodical's Estimate of Travel Here Is Underestimated

The Alabama Traveller, official organ of the travelling men of Alabama, has joined in the effort to build a bridge across the Tennessee river at this point.

The current issue of The Alabama Traveller says

Guntersville is grumbling because $400,000 has been appropriated to build a second bridge across the Coosa at Gadsden and no appropriation has been made to bridge the Tennessee at Guntersville. Some of the same grumbling has been heard at Decatur for the same reason as at Guntersville. The Tennessee should be bridged at both places, not only to benefit the two localities, but to benefit the general travelling public of this state and tourists. There may not be $800,000 available in the bridge fund to build the two needed bridges. The two bridges might cost more. There is a way to build those bridges. Build them as toll bridges until such time as the tolls have redeemed the bonds. It is said 100 cars cross the ferry at Gadsden each day. Supposedly the same number cross at Decatur. The cost is $1 per car by ferry. If that be true cars pay $200 a day to the ferries at the two places. If the bridges cost $1,000,000 and give an income of $200 a day, $72,500 annually from automobiles alone. It would not take long to pay the bonds in that way.

Local people were very much interested in the Traveller's editorial paragraph quoted above and were appreciative of the effort to help the movement for a bridge here.

The Traveller however, has underestimated the amount of traffic across the river here. One day recently 400 cars, instead of 100, passed over the ferry. Best opinion is that if a bridge was constructed the traffic would be very much increased. The ferry, itself, is expected to receive constantly increased business inasmuch as additional tourists constantly are going and northward along the Bee Line highway and Albany-Decatur confidently expect to be on the new Chicago-Florida highway as well.

Another Victim In Gas Poisoning

(Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—A fifth victim of the mysterious gas poisoning in the research laboratory of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey died in a hospital here today.

Herbert Fuson, 29 years old of Elizabeth, was the latest victim. Before his death he had to be placed in a straight jacket.

The last three victims have died at approximately the same hour on three successive mornings all of them becoming violent.

Eleven additional men suffering from the strange poisoning were brought to the hospital last night bringing the total effected to 33.

Last night doctors at the hospital announced that they had made discovered an antidote by which they hoped to save Fuson's life but he died in the same violent manner as the others.

OPERATORS OF GINS ARE ASKED TO AID
BOLL WEEVIL FIGHT

Statement Is Issued By County Agent
J. C. Ford

SLAY THE PESTS, AGENT WARNS

Feed Live Steam Into Containers Where
Trash Is Stored

Gin operators can do much toward stamping out the boll weevil in this section, it is pointed out in a card issued to the public today by J. C. Ford, county farm agent. Owners and operators of gins were asked by the county agent to take advantage of their opportunity to help rid the county of the cotton pests.

Mr. Ford's statement follows:

"It is frequently noticed that the first weevils to appear in the spring in any district are in the immediate vicinity of gins. The infestation spreads rapidly from these centers. The explanation is that enormous numbers of weevils are concentrated at the gins during the fall. It has been shown by actual experiments that many of the weevils taken to the gin along with seed cotton pass through the cleaning devices and the gin themselves and are discharged alive with the trash from the cleaners or the gin. This trash is sometimes allowed to accumulate on the floors but more often is fed mechanically into barrels or boxes. If anyone will examine such trash at any gin in the infested territory at this time he will find large numbers of weevils crawling about and finding hibernating places.

"It is very evident that ginners have an opportunity to take an effective step against the weevil at this time. All that is necessary is to have the gin trash fed into barrels or similar containers, cover them so that the weevils cannot escape and feed live steam into the receptacle. It is true that the gin trash is generally eventually burned, but the common practice is to allow it to accumulate in considerable quantities and in the meantime the weevils leave it and secrete themselves in and about the gin."

Squirrel Season Opens Saturday

C. M. Harwel, district game warden, and popular official was here today, advising hunters in regard to the opening of the game seasons and the necessity of obtaining licenses, etc. Mr. Harwel stated the squirrel season will open Saturday.

He urged that hunters obtain their licenses and permits, when necessary, in order that the sport may be enjoyed to the utmost by all, without the necessity of any official action.

"Our department," he said, "is for the protection of the game life. We do not like to embarrass hunters by making complaints against them. We do not like to have to use force in any instance. We strive for the co-operation of the hunters, themselves. If we can obtain that co-operation, we can enforce the law, and preserve the game."

DISTRICT ENGINEER
PREPARES REPORT ABOUT NAVIGATION

Effect of Development of Waterpower On River Discussed

LOCAL PEOPLE ASKED TO HELP

Information Gathered
By Major Fiske
For Report

The United States district engineer's office at Chattanooga, Tenn., is preparing a report, asked by congress which will deal with the navigation possibilities of the river, when the hydro-electric developments are completed.

Local people have been asked to furnish the department with whatever information they have in regard to the matter, according to the following letter being sent out by Harold C. Fiske, major corps of engineers:

"This office is preparing a report called for by congress dealing with the factors which future hydro-electric development in the Tennessee basin has in common with future desirable improvement for navigation thereon. For example, due consideration will be given to the possibility of building locks and dams in the Tennessee River at suitable intervals such as to permit the maximum economic development of hydro-electric power from this stream and at the same time to give slack-water navigation from Knoxville (and Clinton and Harbison) downstream to Muscle Shoals and perhaps farther.

"In considering the importance to navigation interests of such scheme, it is essential to discuss not only existing river traffic (concerning which this office is now reasonably well informed) but also the character, quantity and value of such traffic as would appear on the river if any such scheme of slack water navigation as that above mentioned were carried into effect. It is believed that any man with broad vision, who is familiar with this subject, could prepare a glowing statement of the potential importance of such an improvement. What is now desired however, is not so much a statement of the benefits which might or ought to flow from such an improvement, but rather what are the benefits which it is reasonable to expect will in fact occur and how rapidly will they be realized.

"Such information or opinions will be most convincing when they come from merchants, manufacturers, shippers, freight carriers, etc., and are in the form of statements as to what use each individual, or individual company will make of such a river route when it is in fact available for the transportation of freight and passengers. It is desired that all interested in this matter have an opportunity for the full and free expression of their opinions. It is requested that in reply each recipient duly consider the value of the suggested improvement in the navigability of the Tennessee and its tributaries to the business in which he is interested and state as definitely as possible quantity, character and value of the traffic which his business would contribute to the use of the improved river. This reply will be understood to be the writer's best judgment on the questions raised and not an obligation binding him in the future conduct of his business. This office will be glad to receive the names and addresses of all interested in this matter of whom you may know who have been inadvertently omitted from our mailing list.

"Careful consideration of this matter and prompt reply will be greatly appreciated."

LONDON, Oct. 30.—A great conservative victory in yesterday's election to succeed the parliament that was dissolved after the labor government was defeated in the question of the Campbell prosecution became more and more apparent this afternoon. The returns showed conservative gains in every section of the country.

Conservative leaders claimed at 2 o'clock their party had won a clear majority over all other parties.

Former premier David Lloyd George liberal, was re-elected to the house of commons, polling 16,058 to 3,400 for his labor opponent Professor Zimmerman.

Frank Hodges, civil lord of the admiralty in the MacDonald government was defeated in the Litchfield division of Staffordshire by his conservative opponent R. R. Wilson who polled 14,588 to 12,512 for the labor leader.

Winston Churchill contesting as a constitutionalist candidate was elected to the house of commons.

Attorney general Patrick Hastings whose conduct of the Campbell prosecution was the indirect cause of the downfall of the labor government retained his seat in the house of commons.

FUNERAL HELD FOR SLAIN MAN

Shot Said to Have Hit
Deceased In Heart,
Death Instant

Silas Blankenship, 16-year-old Priceville youth, who was placed in jail here yesterday afternoon in connection with the shooting to death of Bob Tosh, a blacksmith of Priceville, today told a reporter that he fired at Tosh in self defense.

Blankenship probably will be held over to await an investigation by the Morgan county grand jury, which will convene on November 2, as a part of the regular fall term of circuit court. Inasmuch as the grand jury will convene so soon, court officials did not believe there would be a preliminary hearing in the case.

In talking with a Daily reporter and an officer today Blankenship contended that he had championed the cause of several boys, whom Tosh had accused of being involved in some mischief about the blacksmith shop operated by the slain man.

Blankenship charged that Tosh turned on him and had him hemmed in a corner of the shop and had a knife and hammer, when he fired. Blankenship admitted he was 16 years of age and thought Tosh was about 50 years of age.

It was alleged that two shots were fired from Blankenship's pistol, one going wild, and the other entering the deceased's heart, killing him instantly.

The funeral for the deceased was held at Shoals Creek church at 11 o'clock this morning. The deceased was survived by a wife, a daughter and three sons. He formerly resided here.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Oct. 30.—A verdict of guilty for murder in the second degree was returned by a jury in the circuit court today in the case of Charley Byrd, Charles Peyton and Robert Limbaugh, tried jointly for the murder of Erskine Elmore, a farmer from Limestone county.

The punishment was fixed as follows:

"Byrd 25 years in the penitentiary; Peyton 15 years, and Limbaugh, 10 years.

The defense claimed that Elmore and a companion had made themselves obnoxious to girl employees of a soft drink bottling plant and were beaten with no intention of seriously injuring them. Elmore died at the city hospital of a fractured skull the night he was injured.

The attorneys gave notice of appeal.

SPORTS

Eastern Teams Meet In Hectic Struggles As Season Advances

Penn State-Navy, Penn-Lafayette, Pitt-Syracuse, that's a trio of headliners for the Saturday offering. As the season advances the contest gets closer, no craps for the clubs in the east until the week before Thanksgiving. From this point forward it is truly a fight to the last drop of blood.

Army-Yale, Washington and Jefferson-Detroit, Columbia-Cornell form another trio that will cause a bit of thought before any odds are placed. While many sports writers risk even death in picking actual scores the best this writer can do is to pick the winner of the Saturday games. We pick Penn State over the Navy although the Nittany Lion failed to cause tremors in Tech ranks with a tremendous roaring in the last quarter. Lafayette with a splendid record for the year will not hesitate to decate Penn null and void. Syracuse is favored over Pitt although it is very likely that Pitt will pull through, this being the Panther's week to win. Pitt has been in and out through the entire season and has lost all her big games with rival eleven with the exception of West Virginia.

Yale is favored over Army who like the Navy has suffered a relapse in the football world. W. & J. will undoubtedly pull across ahead of Detroit. While the inspired eleven of former coach Haughton of Columbia will hand Gil Dobie's big red team from Cornell a jolt. This opinion is voiced by the writers over the country and they believe that Columbia will defeat any team in the country next Saturday imbued with the spirit of their beloved dead mentor.

It is of interest to a great many Albany-Decatur fans in the football world to note that DeWoody Wilkinson former local boy who played with the Decatur High team is at last safe in a regular berth with the Howard Bulldogs. Wilkinson worked just as hard to make the Howard eleven as he worked while he was here in every endeavor and it is pleasing to his friends who will watch the sterling play of the 190 pound end.

Wilkinson has had a hard time making his way to the first string but with persistent effort, fight and determination he has won out over the competition. This sort of recognition comes not only in football but in all business lines.

The Y. M. C. A. Independents left at 1:30 today for Falkville where they engage the Falkville Independent high school combination in the first of their out of town invasions. The Falkville team has been greatly strengthened with college and prep school players and it is thought that one of the hardest games on the schedule is now being played. Captain Ellison, Gustin, McRee and Hartselle or Handy started in the backfield with Speer, Watson, Byers, Kirby, Walker, Bowen and Shelton in the line. Donohue, Dunaway, Grice, McAbee and Cobb made the trip along with Coach Lively and Manager Arvidson. Quite a number of Albany-Decatur people attended the game that was called at 3:15 p. m.

Facts About Child-birth

It has been proven conclusively that most of the suffering, pain and dread experienced during pregnancy, as well as child-birth is entirely unnecessary. An eminent physician, Dr. H. H. Holm expert in this science, first produced a great remedy "Mother's Friend," which aches the muscles and tissues to expand easily, during the constant readjustment month after month, right up to the time of child-birth.

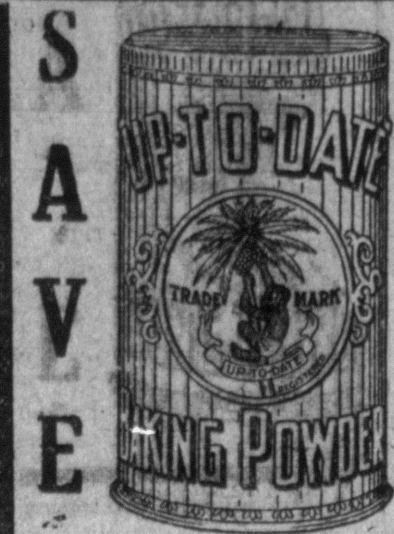

"Mother's Friend" is applied externally. Three generations of expectant mothers have used it. "Pain disappeared in two days after using 'Mother's Friend'." Writes a user, "I owe my life to 'Mother's Friend.'" declares another. Use "Mother's Friend" as our mothers and grandmothers did start today and experience the wonderful comfort it will give you.

Mr. Coolidge has only a few more days and then he can say what he pleases.

Publicity is not greatly enjoyed by the income tax bunch at this writing.

The Russians are said to be interested in football. Well, they will not have to wear any face guards.

The next time you will have one good feature, next time it will be harder to get away with lies as to incomes.

Coolidge may find that the O. K. of Charles Evans Hughes lacks a lot of being the approval of the entire nation.

The City of Hartselle and the Alabama highway commission have given a striking example of what may be accomplished when co-operation is given an opportunity. The Bee Line Highway approaching Hartselle and through the city, itself, is a thing of beauty and a joy to the touring motorists. It is hoped that the Echols hill improvement will not be long delayed.

Thrills, no doubt, come to everyone if they wait long enough. We got a thrill from the merchant who came to our office and said: "I know that The Daily is slowly building up a circulation in Albany-Decatur trade territory. I know too that it is costing you money, but that your advertising rates have not been raised. I just want you to know that I appreciate your help in increasing my business." Thrills, of course.

The people of Lawrence county have taken a long step toward joining hands with Morgan County by the construction of a good gravel road for several miles in the direction of the Twin Cities. To the credit of Morgan let it be said that we have not shirked our responsibilities and Morgan is building a nine foot roadway toward the Lawrence-Morgan line. We do not intend that the temporary road shall be permanent, but we intend that it shall serve until such time as a better one can be constructed. The present Morgan County board of revenue has worked very hard to help the road building program along and The Daily hopes that the public generally appreciates that fact.

"BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS"

The world flirts hop off for Iceland. An Associated Press correspondent on an American cruiser in the North Atlantic reports conditions where they land. An Italian airman is lost, and the story of his rescue comes from an Associated Press correspondent on the vessel that finds him. The Prince of Wales starts for America on the Berengaria. An Associated Press correspondent on board tells of his playing mah jong with the Mountbattens. The Republican vice presidential nominee starts East and the heading, "By the Associated Press," is over a date line, "On the Way to Chicago With General Dawes." Ford, Edison and Firestone visit President Coolidge at his father's home and the Associated Press reports their conversation in detail. John W. Davis can no more escape from the vigilance of the Associated Press men than the President can evade his secret service guard.

It was Jo McCupplagh of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat who said it was the news editor's function to know where hell was going to break out next and have a man there. The Associated Press has made that principle of action its own. The army of readers who benefit by that policy must admit the system has been reduced to a science.

LET THE BENEVOLENT AND CHARITABLE ORGANIZATIONS PRESENT THEIR CLAIMS

It may have been better had all the charity organizations of the community been federated as was planned about one year ago. It might have been better to have established a "community chest," but what should have been done in the past has no connection with duties to the present and to the future. As matters now stand there are a number of charity organizations in the Twin Cities. All or part of the number are on the eve of opening financial campaigns. Without question, the several campaigns should have the hearty support of all who are able to give to the needy.

Starting Sunday, the local Salvation Army will open its campaign to raise a budget of about $3,500 for the coming year's work of that organization. The reports of the service of the Salvation Army during the past year should be carefully studied by those who will present its claims during next week. Those who are expected to contribute to the Army should know what it has done and what it proposes to do.

The American Red Cross roll call will begin within a few weeks. The officials of that organization should see that the people throughout the county are furnished with full particulars as to the work of the Red Cross since this time last year.

The Benevolent Society, sponsor and builder of the local Benevolent Hospital is expected to ask alms before many days have passed for the many needy unfortunate people of the community. That organization will doubtless be ready with a clear full statement of what it has done, is doing and proposes to do. In view of the prospect of a new addition to the Benevolent Hospital, that institution's work will be of especial interest.

There are other local organizations that plan to do many worthy deeds between now and the Christmas holidays. They with all those mentioned should go before the public with full statements as to what they propose to do for the needy.

POLITICAL INTELLIGENCE

Addressing a group of American girls about to vote for the first time, a clear-headed and high-minded minister tells them:

"You must learn what it means when a British prime minister goes to his king and says that the country must pass on the matter of a treaty with Russia. You must learn what the changing politics of central Europe indicate, and the significance of Japanese exclusion. You must learn these things, not as abstract information, but in their relation to the issues on which you must pass at the polls.

"You must get behind the personalities of candidates and learn the background of the things for which they and their parties stand.

"And it will be your privilege to aid in the establishment of a personal contact between the public official and the electorate. Do not let him think that we wire pullers and professional politicians who are constantly tugging at his coat tails represent the opinion and the wishes of the public."

Here is a large order for inexperienced citizens. But it points the sure way to political progress. And it is the right thing to say to first voters. Being still young and plastic-minded, they can learn more readily than their elders. In them lies the best hope of making our future political life better than it has been in the past. They may make political intelligence less "rare."

—Tuscaloosa News.

AS TO CAMPAIGN APATHY

Registration figures from important centers of population do not bear out the contention that the presidential campaign is apathetic. In every important locality from which reports of registration have come, an unprecedented number of citizens have qualified to vote. The closing of the registration books in New York City found the number of voters enrolled at 1,494,000, a figure 120,000 greater than that of any previous year. Reports from Syracuse indicate a familiar gain in the number of registrants in the up-state districts of New York. In Indiana and Ohio, in the heart of the populous Middle West, all registration records have been broken. An especially large enrollment of voters is said to have taken place in Cleveland, Ohio's largest city, and Indianapolis, the metropolis of the Hoosier state.

These figures would seem to indicate that the apathy so frequently referred to in recent political discussions is superficial only. The voters may not be giving way to exhibitions of enthusiasm, as some of the campaign managers would like them to do, but they are preparing to go to the polls and express their preferences. The campaign may not have aroused the usual popular clamor, but on the basis of the registration record it seems to have aroused the kind of sober interest likely to make itself manifest in the election returns.—Norfolk Virginia-Pilot.

BEWARE OF CARBON MONOXIDE, IS WARNING OF HEALTH SERVICE

The newspapers recently carried a news item of the death from carbon monoxide poisoning, of a prominent Baltimore man, who was found dead in his garage with the engine of his automobile still running. With the onset of colder weather such accidents will probably increase in frequency, says the Surgeon General of the United States Public Health Service, who warns automobile owners of the danger involved in running a gasoline engine in a small closed space for any considerable period of time.

In tests of the exhaust of a small 23 horsepower automobile engine it has been found that it discharged approximately 25 cubic feet of gas per minute, samples of which gave an average of 6 per cent carbon monoxide, or 1.5 cubic feet of deadly carbon monoxide, per minute. Of course larger engines will give off more. Now a ratio of 15 parts of carbon monoxide to 10,000 parts of air is considered a dangerous concentration to be exposed to for a considerable time; and the small 23 horsepower engine in "warming up" and giving off only one cubic foot of carbon monoxide per minute would contaminate the air of a small closed garage, 10 by 10 by 20 feet, to the danger point in about three minutes.

Carbon monoxide, it is explained, is a colorless, tasteless, and almost odorless gas. Its poisonous action depends on the fact that it has a much greater affinity for the hemoglobin of the blood than has oxygen—hemoglobin attracting carbon monoxide about 300 times as strongly as it does oxygen. By combining with carbon monoxide, the hemoglobin of the red blood corpuscles is prevented from giving up its oxygen to the tissues. Death results from paralysis of the respiratory apparatus.

The attack of carbon monoxide poisoning comes on insidiously, and consciousness is gradually lost. Even though the victim may become aware of the danger he is often unable to escape from it because of the great loss of motor power.

The automobile worker in a small garage is most frequently the victim. It therefore behooves every person who runs his engine in a small garage to see to it that the room is properly ventilated by having the windows and doors opened if he expects to run the engine for even a few minutes.—Anniston Star.

Almon Campaign Without Expense

Edward B. Almon, congressman from the eighth district, and five other Alabama congressmen, candidates for re-election on the democratic ticket, will win in November without having spent anything on the November campaign, according to statements of their expense accounts, filed with the secretary of state, in accordance with law. The six are: Mr. Almon; Lamar Jeffers, fourth district; H. B. Steagall, third district; George Huddles-ton, ninth district; Lister Hill, second district; W. B. Oliver, sixth district.

Your children's food

The foods your children eat today, determine their strength and health in later years.

Remember this; they must have well balanced meals. Their food should contain the right amount of mineral salts. These salts act as bone building material.

Bakings that are made of good plain white flour and baking powder contain the necessary amount of mineral salts. Allow your children to eat heartily of these bakings together with fruits and dairy products. This forms an ideal food balance.

When making quick rising breads and pastries such as biscuits, muffins, cakes, etc., don't fail to use Calumet—the economy Baking Powder. It contains more than the ordinary leavening strength—it's the purest and surest leavener made. That's why it helps make your flour foods light and easily digested.

Millions of mothers use Calumet daily because they are interested in their children's welfare—their present and future health.

AMUSEMENTS

"THE FOOL"

It is the belief of the Selwyns, the producers, that so remarkable a play as Channing Pollock's "The Fool," should have the best cast obtainable. For that reason their companies in "The Fool," on tour, have been provided with as fine an ensemble as it was possible to engage. It is said the play cannot be put over successfully even with only a fairly good cast. This is good news, for it indicates that the company to be seen at the Masonic theatre Tuesday night, Nov. 4 will be of a high standard. The Selwyns have made a reputation for the excellence of their touring companies. Seats go on sale Saturday morning, November 1st.

Moulton News

A fire occurred at the Stephenson and Alexander gin Monday afternoon that for a time threatened destruction of a vast amount of cotton. In a few minutes after the whistle began to blow nearly all the men of the town were rendering assistance with buckets and hose. The fire originated about one of the gin heads and through an error in an effort to extinguish it cotton was pulled out spreading the flames.

As it was, the most serious part of the excitement proved to be the misfortune befalling Will Tucker, a farmer of northeast of Moulton. In an effort to assist he jumped from a platform and broke one of his legs between the ankle and knee. Mr. Tucker was given medical attention at once and Tuesday morning the citizens of the town were subscribing to a fund to defray doctor's fees and other expenses.

The schools of Lawrence county opened Monday with a force of 135 teachers to give the instruction to the boys and girls. Including the teachers of the county high school, 140 were in attendance at the institute held at the court house Friday and Saturday preceding the opening of the schools. Ideal weather conditions tended to make it one of the best meetings of teachers held in the county. Many of the teachers enrolled in the state association and all in the county are planning to take some form of professional study during the session. Besides the regular group meetings to be held as usual at Mount Hope and Matton, extension work from the Florence State Normal will be conducted at Moulton and possibly at Hillsboro and university extension work at Town Creek. Those teachers who are so situated that they cannot attend these meetings will take some form of home study.

Monday was a busy day round the court house in Moulton. The adjourned session of county court was concluded and brought many from various parts of the county either as witnesses or jurors. Judge W. R. Jackson presided.

The good prices for cotton mean success for the local school entertainments; Hutton in the west part of the county began the series with an entertainment that netted above $120 and Mount Hope cleared above $150 Saturday night.

MRS. SMILEY'S DINNER

Mrs. J. R. Smiley was a charming dinner hostess when she entertained in honor of Miss Mabel Pride and Dr. John C. Bragg, whose marriage will be a brilliant social event of November Sixth. The Smiley home was beautifully decorated with white chrysanthemums and quantities of Jackson Vine setting a color scheme of green and white that was effectively carried out further in the decorations with green candles in silver holders tied with white tulle and lilies of the valley. The place cards were wreaths of lilies of the valley and at the brides place were dainty favors, wish bones tied with green and white ribbon and showered with lilies of the valley.

A four course buffet dinner was served after which dancing was indulged until a late hour.

The following is a list of those present: Miss Pride and Dr. Bragg, Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Harris, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Elliott, Mrs. Thompson Pride of Memphis, Tenn., Mrs. R. G. Cortner, Mr. and Mrs. W. CHAPTER XVII (continued)

For a moment his glance was held by a lovely black-haired Spanish girl, who sat with her locked hands held fast between her knees, in an attitude of intense despair and suffering—the glory of her eyes increased and magnified by the dark brown stains of sleeplessness surrounding them. Leaning on Tsamanni's arm, he stood considering her for a little while; then his glance traveled on. Suddenly he tightened his grasp of Tsamanni's arm, and a quick interest leaped into his hollow face.

On the uppermost tier of the pen that he was facing sat a very glory of womanhood, such a woman as he had heard tell existed but the like of which he had never yet beheld. She was tall and graceful as a cypress tree; her skin was white as milk, her eyes two dark sapphires, her head of a coppery golden that seemed to glow like metal as the sunlight caught it. She was dressed in a close gown of white, the bodice cut low and revealing the immaculate loveliness of her neck.

Asad-ed-Din turned to Ali.

"What pearl is this that hath been cast upon this dung-heap?" he asked.

"She is the woman our lord Sakrel-Bahr carried off from England." Slowly the Basha's eyes returned to consider her, and insensibly though she had deemed herself by now, he saw her cheeks slowly reddening under the cold insult of his steady, insistent glance. The glow heightened her beauty, of facing the weariness which the face had worn.

"Bring her forth," said the Basha shortly.

She was seized by two of the negroes, and to avoid being roughly handled by them she came at once, bracing herself to bear with dignity whatever might await her. A golden-haired young man beside her, his face haggard and stubbled with a beard of some growth, looked up in alarm as she was taken from his side. Then, with a groan, he made as if to clutch her, but a rod fell upon his raised arms and beat them down.

Asad was thoughtful. It was Fenzileh who had bidden him come look at the infidel maid whom Sakrel-Bahr had risked so much to snatch from England, suggesting that in her he would behold some proof of the bad faith which she was forever urging against the corsair leader. Out of curiosity he had obeyed her prompting. But mind than the mere desire to play the courtier now. "Twixt Fenzileh and himself there had long been a feud begotten of the jealousy which each inspired the other where Asad was concerned. Were Fenzileh removed the wazeer's influence must grow and spread to his own profit. It was a thing of which he had often dreamed, but a dream he feared that was never like to be realized, for Asad was ageing, and the fires that had burned so fiercely in his earlier years seemed now to have consumed in him all thought of women. Yet here was one as by a miracle, of a beauty so amazing and so diverse from any that ever yet had feasted the Basha's sight, that plainly she had acted as a charm upon his senses.

"She is white as the snows upon the Atlas, luscious as the dates of Tadilat," he murmured fondly, his gleaming eyes considering her what time she stood immovable before him.

Suddenly he looked about him, and wheeled upon Tsamanni, his manner swiftly becoming charged with anger.

"Her face has been bared to a thousand eyes and more," he cried.

"Even that has been so before," replied Tsamanni.

And then quite suddenly at their elbow a voice that was naturally soft and musical of accent but now rendered harsh, cut in to ask—

"What woman may this be?"

Startled, both the Basha and his wazeer swung round. Fenzileh, becomingly veiled and hooded, stood before them, escorted by Marzak. A little behind them were the eunuchs and the litter in which, unperceived by Asad, she had been borne thither. Beside the litter stood her wazeer Ayoub-el-Samin.

Asad scowled down upon her, for he had seen her from the moment she and Marzak had provoked in him. Moreover, that in private she should be lacking in the respect which was his due was evil enough, though he had tolerated it. But that she should make so bold as to thrust in and question him in this peremptory fashion before all the world was more than his dignity could suffer.

Never yet had she dared so much, nor would she have dared it now but that her sudden anxiety had effaced all caution from her mind. Her hold upon Asad was growing tenuous. To snap it utterly no more was necessary than that he who of late years had scarce bestowed a thought or glance upon a woman should be taken with the that and all else were forgotten now in the contemplation of this noble example of Northern womanhood, statuesque almost in her terrible restraint.

He put forth a hand to touch her arm, and she drew it back as if his fingers were of fire.

He sighed.

"How inscrutable are the ways of Allah, that He should suffer so luscious a fruit to hang from the foul tree of infidelity!"

Tsamanni, watching him craftily, a master-sycophant profoundly learned in the art of playing upon his master's moods, made answer:

"Even so perchance that a Faithful of the Prophet's House may pluck it. Varily all things are possible to the One!"

"Yet is it not set down in the Book to be Read that the daughters of the infidel are not for True-Believers?"

But Tsamanni, knowing full well how the Basha would like to be answered, trimmed his reply to that desire.

"Allah is great, and what hath befallen once may well befall again, my lord."

Asad's kindling eyes flashed a glance at his wazeer.

"Thou meanest Fenzileh. But then, by the mercy of Allah, I was rendered the instrument of her enlightenment."

"It may well be written that thou shalt be the same again, my lord," murmured the insidious Tsamanni. There was more stirring in his fancy to bring some new recruit to his harem.

Hence her desperate, reckless courage to stand thus before him now, for although her face was veiled there was hardly arrogance in every line of her figure. Of his scowl she took no slightest heed.

"If this be the slave fetched by Sakrel-Bahr from England, then rumor has lied to me," she said. "I vow it was scarce worth so long a voyage and the endangering so many valuable Moslem lives to fetch this yellow-faced, long-shanked daughter of perdition into Barbary."

Asad's surprise beat down his anger. He was not subtle.

"Yellow-faced? Long-shanked?" quoth he.

Then reading Fenzileh at last, he displayed a slow, crooked smile.

"Already have I observed thee to grow hard of hearing, and now thy sight is falling, too, it seems. Assuredly thou art growing old."

And he looked her over with such an eye of displeasure that she recoiled.

He stepped close up to her.

"Too long already hast thou queened it in my harem with thine infidel, Frankish ways," he muttered, so that none but those immediately about overheard his angry words.

"Thou art become a very scandal in the eyes of the Faithful," he added very grimly. It were well, perhaps, that we amended that."

PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATION HOLDS INTERESTING MEETING

The Hartselle Parent-Teacher Association held its regular meeting last Tuesday afternoon in the high school auditorium. The vice president, Mrs. J. F. Hodges presided. After prayer by Prof. W. T. Tiller, the following program was given.

Miss Mary Paul Barclift, a member of the senior class of the M. C. H. S. gave a beautiful piano solo which every one greatly enjoyed.

The next item was an essay by Miss Teme Gibson, subject: The responsibilities and privileges of the second year class to first year class. This essay was full of good, helpful suggestions, and pleased the audience very much.

Supt. E. L. Hays, in his characteristic and pleasing way, spoke for a few minutes on "what we accomplished last year through co-operation." In this short time it was shown that many worthwhile things had been done by the united effort of the members of the P. T. A., and among them was the financial success of the Chautauqua for it showed a net balance after all its obligations had been met.

One of the most helpful and instructive numbers was the talk by professor L. E. Snyder on, "Reading for the sophomores."

If the parents of the sophomores had heard this splendid address, more attention would be given to the reading matter falling into the hands of these.

In the course of the address special attention and stress was given to the kind of books that should be read, basing his conclusions on the principles of geology and psychology.

One of the most interesting features of the meeting was the reports of the two delegates to the state P. T. A. convention which was held in Anniston. Mrs. J. H. Riddle and Mrs. W. H. Lovelady represented the Hartselle chapter, and each one gave a most interesting and inspiring report.

The local association is very proud of the fact that one of its members, Mrs. E. L. Hays was elected state president for the second time. The next regular meeting will be held November 11th, Armistice Day in the city school auditorium, when an Armistice day program will be given.

With the reading of the program for the next regular meeting, the association adjourned.

County Supt. E. L. Hays announces that the Morgan County Teachers Institute will be held at the city school in Hartselle on Friday and Saturday of this week, and the district schools will open next Monday, November 3, for five months term.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER FOR MISS GRICE

Miss Willie Maude Grice, an early November bride-to-be was complimented with a miscellaneous shower, on last Tuesday afternoon by Miss Gladys Stewart and Miss Katie Lon Tatum, as joint hostesses, at the home of the former. Many friends of this popular young woman were present, bringing together a large array of elegant presents and presented them as slight tokens of the high esteem in which she was held by them.

After passing a pleasant hour in conversation, featured by vocal and instrumental music, delightful refreshments were served. Miss Grice has been the recipient of several occasions planned in her honor since her wedding announcement, which happy event is to culminate early in November.

Are You Committing This Crime Against Your Health?

An enormous number of people are weak, nervous and ailing, always complaining and doctoring, simply because they have committed the great American crime against their health—because while indoor life, overwork and improper diet have exhausted the iron from their blood, making it thin, pale and watery, they have made no effort to replace this iron which the blood must have to keep them well and strong.

You can easily determine, whether you have been committing this health crime. You can get more iron by eating plenty of spinach, lentils and green vegetables. But doctors always advise people who are anemic, weak, nervous and run-down to take iron in concentrated form—organic iron. Nuxated Iron is organic iron like the iron in your own blood and like that in spinach and green vegetables. It is entirely different from the mineral iron used in the past, for it is readily assimilated and so acts much more quickly and surely. Besides, it doesn't injure the teeth or disturb the stomach. Nuxated Iron represents organic iron in such concentrated form that one dose is estimated to be equal to eating half a quart of spinach, one quart of green vegetables or half a dozen baked apples. Millions of people have used it to quickly help make rich red blood, and give increased strength, energy and endurance.

Make this convincing test:—Get Nuxated Iron today and take it for only two weeks. You will notice a marvelous improvement in health and strength, or your money will be refunded. Sold under this absolute guarantee by all good druggists.—Advt.

KLUX AND CIRCLES WISH TO PARADE

Mayor Yells For Aid In Coming Disorders Saturday

(Associated Press)
NILES, O., Oct. 29.—Explosion of a bomb early today wrecked the front of the home of Mayor H. L. Kistler. Although the mayor and his family were sleeping upstairs they escaped injury.

A controversy regarding the right of the Ku Klux Klan to stage a parade Saturday afternoon has been raging several days.

Officials of the Knights of the Flaming Circle also applied for permission to parade at the same time but their request was denied by the mayor who declared that the Klan officials applied first. Flaming Circle officials declared that they would parade without a permit.

Mayor Kistler has applied to other cities in the neighborhood to aid in suppressing any disorders that might arise.

A peace conference held last evening under the chairmanship of T. H. Sheehan representing the Niles manufacturers association with leaders of both factions present failed to achieve its object of a truce it was announced after the meeting.

CONFERENCE HEARS PHYSICAL EDUCATION HOSPITAL REPORT TO BE TAUGHT HERE

Board of Control May Be Enlarged Under Recommendation

(Associated Press)
TALLADEGA, Ala., Oct. 30.—The work of the minister and not the salary is the big thing in the estimate of Bishop Warren A. Candler who is residing at the annual session of the North Alabama Methodist Episcopal conference here.

In his devotion talk today the Bishop declared the ministers of church should accept uncomplainingly appointments given them, not considering the money paid but the work they are about.

It is generally understood that the question of unification, looking to reuniting southern and northern branches of the church, will come up at this session of the conference, since the commission representing the two organizations recommended that it be submitted at next year's conference.

It is said, however, that some ministers and laymen are anxious to bring up the matter at this meeting and dispose of it.

The report of the committee on hospitals mentioned five hospitals owned by the Southern church and three more under construction, one of the latter at Montgomery, which will be opened in January next. This Montgomery institution was a gift to the two Alabama conferences as a memorial to two Alabama boys who died on the battlefields in the world war. The conferences assumed a bond issue of $50,000 on it.

The hospital report said the two conferences must raise $250,000, the north Alabama conference to pay $75,000 and the other conference $125,000. The report urged greater activity in hospital work.

Dr. F. W. Brandon was recommended for superintendent of the Montgomery hospital and Dr. E. B. Norton as chairman of the board of control. The committee further suggested that the board be enlarged to consist of one layman from each district and an equal number of ministers.

34 PAY TUITION

There are 34 children living outside of Albany paying tuition in Albany schools. It should be of interest to the people of the city to learn that these young people are taking advantage of the special privileges offered by the city schools. The per capita cost of each pupil in school is charged for these out-of-town students.

State Director Maps Out Course For Local Students

The Albany schools are adopting the program in physical education of the state plan under the regular system. The state has employed a full time director to map out the course and see to its execution. Mr. Sharmon, who has been selected for this position, was director of physical education in Mobile city and county schools for a long while, and spent last year studying physical education at Columbia University.

Mr. Sharmon spent Tuesday, Wednesday and today studying the various classes and students of the Albany schools, and aiding in organizing the work and getting the program under way.

The state has gone to considerable expense in preparing and publishing a manual for this course. The manual contains diagrams, action pictures, games, and systems of calisthenic exercises, and are supplied to the schools free of course.

The work is to be voluntary, and will all take place out of doors. It is really a system of organized play devised to better the physical condition of the students taking part. The system was originated from the old form of calisthenics when it was found that the latter system was not getting the best results.

Through co-operation with the Y. M. C. A., Physical Director Arvidson is giving physical drills to the high school pupils.

At the present time there is a greater emphasis being put on physical education in public schools of America than ever before. This is due to the outcome of the physical examinations and their results.

Paintings of Local Artist Exhibited

At her studio on Second avenue, Miss Helen Higdon has on exhibit some of her paintings which will soon be sent to Washington for the winter exhibit of the "Washington Art Club." One of the paintings of great merit and of special local interest is a Pastel portrait sketch of Mrs. Henry Zeitler of Mooresville. The portrait is done in brilliant coloring. Miss Higdon has also finished a beautifully executed miniature dome on ivory of Colonel Fletcher, grandfather of Mrs. Zeitler painted from a miniature which is a valued and treasured heirloom. Some of the pictures of Miss Higdon have received honorable mention by art judges at Washington and Birmingham at different times.

A notable study in "black and white" of Voltaire by Miss Higdon shows the noted Frenchman to be the veritable cynic he is credited with having been. Miss Higdon has lately completed a season's study of art at Washington.

Mrs. J. W. Higdon, mother of the artist, was a Reynolds before her marriage and stated that her people were directly descended from Sir Joshua Reynolds, the famous English portrait painter.

Much New Business Confronts Supreme Court This Winter

WASHINGTON—The supreme court tomorrow will begin its new term, extending into next June, facing an accumulation of 700 cases or 115 more than it found on reconvening a year ago.

Fortunately for the court in its desire to reduce the number of cases on the docket more than one-half of those filed during the recess are motions for writs of certiorari in unimportant issues which will be quietly dealt with as soon as the court can consider them.

When the last term adjourned the court had under advisement 27 cases fully submitted and ready for decision. In these opinions may be expected early during the new term.

To economize in time the court, upon assembling will abandon its ancient custom of adjourning to call upon the president, and settle down to business. Its visit to the White House will be made out of office hours.

To end as far as possible the practice of keeping cases on the docket merely to prevent final adjustment of controversies, the court will enforce a new rule under which cases passed at the request of counsel, when reached for argument, will not be reinstated for consideration at the same term except by order of the court after a showing has been made under oath of good cause.

A material change is noted in the character of the business coming up. Not long ago the most important cases to reach the court were brought under the anti-trust laws. These gave way to railroad re-organizations and labor disputes, followed last term by prohibition and Japanese immigration. Now questions arising out of recent congressional investigations promise to occupy the center of the stage. Already the government has appealed the M. S. Daugherty case challenging the authority of a congressional committee to compel the production of bank books and records.

Another phase of the controverted power of congress to delve into the accounts of business concerns is before the court in three cases in which the Federal Trade Commission acting under a resolution of the senate sought to compel Baltimore grain houses to furnish data desired in connection with the formulation of a policy to aid wheat farmers. In the Claire Furnace case the court will determine to what extent manufacturers and others can be compelled to make reports which would disclose their business secrets. In all of these the lower federal courts decided against the government.

An important case involving congressional authority probably will reach the court in the appeal of the proceedings instituted against Harry F. Sinclair, voted by the senate to be in contempt for his refusal to answer questions while a witness before the oil committee. It is expected that during the term cases now pending in the federal courts of Montana and California for the recovery of naval oil reserves leased by Secretaries Fall and Denby to the Sinclair and Doheny interests also will reach the court.

Among the more important cases under advisement in which decisions may be expected at an early day, are those contesting the constitutionality of New York and Ohio statutes imposing a franchise tax upon outside corporations doing business in those states; the right of prohibition agents to stop and search automobiles without a search warrant, in a case from Detroit; the validity of the New York criminal anarchy law raised by Benjamin Gitlow, who was convicted under it, and who now is vice-presidential candidate of the communist workers party, the right to take property in the hands of the Alien Property Custodian to satisfy judgments, the right of strikers to jury trial when charged with contempt of court, and the right to compel bankrupts to disclose concealed assets, in a case against Jules W. (Nicky) Arnstein.

On the original docket are a number of boundary disputes including those between Arkansas and Tennessee, New Mexico and Texas, New Mexico and Colorado, and between Michigan and Wisconsin. Massachusetts has pending a claim to land in Rochester, N. Y., New York and New Jersey separately have attacked the federal water power act.

The right of the president to pardon in contempt cases is challenged in an appeal brought from Chicago by Philip Grossman. Wisconsin joined by other states on the Great Lakes, would restrict the amount of water which the Chicago Sanitary District may take from Lake Michigan, but that controversy is likely to be decided in the appeal now pending of the case which the federal government won in the lower federal courts.

On the appellate docket, cases awaiting consideration include whether railroad employees can be prosecuted for delaying the mails and obstructing interstate commerce when they go on strike, coming from California, where Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe employees refused to move trains during the shopmen's strike of 1922; whether the ship owners association of the Pacific Coast and the Pacific American Steamship Association are unlawful monopolies because of rules relating to the employment of seamen; the validity of the compulsory education law of Oregon requiring children to attend public schools; the right of the federal government to examine records of banks in connection with the enforcement of the income tax law; the validity of Pennsylvania's tax on anthracite coal, and whether Henry Ford owes $11,000,000 as royalty to an inventor of magnetoes.

Others involve the authority of the Interstate Commerce Commission to fix tentative valuation of railroads, the right of Japanese in California to purchase agricultural land to be held in trust for their children born in this country, the validity of Milwaukee's minimum scale wage as applied to city employees; the legality of the city manager plan for Cleveland, Ohio, the jurisdiction of federal courts in admitting aliens, the obligation of railroads to adopt improved mechanical devices, the right of states to impose inheritance, estate and income taxes under certain conditions, the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission over interurban electric railways, and a large number of other cases.
